OCCASION TO SUE

If you were invited to a special occasion at someone's home and were injured in a fall or other accident, would you bother to pursue the matter? When confronted with such an awkward situation, some may think they would be acting ungraciously if they were to seek damages for injuries related to the accident. The fact is, however, no one can foretell when or where accidents will happen. That is why homeowners purchase homeowners insurance, which provides them with liability protection. In essence, when an accident occurs in a person's home, it ceases to be a personal matter and becomes instead the business of the insurer. To ensure that you get everything due you, let a lawyer handle the matter.

Having an attorney on your side in all legal matters is essential and your right. For more information, call our office for a free initial consultation. We concentrate on personal injury cases and for your convenience, we offer hospital and in home visits.

HINT: You may be inclined to brush off the effects of a fall out of embarrassment only to find that you are more seriously injured than you imagined. Let a doctor assess your health.
