

Your Legal Rights

LAYING YOUR CLAIM

It is one thing to know that you have suffered an injury due to another person's negligence, but that brings you to the matter of whom to sue. This usually depends on the type of accident involved. In the case of a slip- or trip- and fall accident, the responsible person might be the one who caused you to fall. Other responsible parties may include the owner of the property on which you fell, or the renter of the property. The owner of the business where you fell may also be held responsible, as might the employer of a person who (during work hours) caused you to fall, regardless of where the accident occurred. These issues should be discussed with your attorney.

For representation in suits involving slip and fall, automobile accidents or another personal injury matter, contact our office. As your legal representative, we will aggressively advocate on your behalf and will do everything possible to make your experience with the legal process as stress-free as possible. We care about our clients and are committed to keeping our clients informed every step of the way. For more information, call our office for a free initial consultation. Personal injury cases are our specialty and for your convenience, we offer hospital and in-home visits.

HINT: It only pays to sue someone who has the wherewithal to pay damages should you win your case.
